The online-webinar was organised by the City of Barcelona, but in very close cooperation with Berlin Government Platform.

The online-meeting took place on June 27th 2024. Over 101 citizens (199) from more than 7 (min. 20) countries participated in this meeting. Every involved project-partner knew the program and his/her tasks and responsibilities. The moderation of the meeting and the communication in the chat was assured by BGP. Important aspects are documented. During the online event we engaged with political and administrative representatives from municipalities, activists, civil society, EU institutions working in the field of migration. We wanted to give the opportunity to interested stakeholders, activists, civil society, and municipalities that can not easily join the in situ activities to engage in the discussion and exchange of best practices of reception of refugee receptions in cities. As part of this working package we also wanted to highlight municipal and civil society expertise by amplifying their assessments of the EU's New Pact on Migration and Asylum.

The event started with welcoming words by Lea Rau (Berlin Governance Platform), explaining the context of the event and the need for exchange about cities' and civil society's assessment of the New Pact. Katharina Bamberg, Head of Migration at Eurocities, spoke additional welcoming words, highlighting the importance of acknowledging cities' voices in policy making. Speakers were introduced and asked to complete the sentence « I believe in the voices of cities because... ».

The core of the online meeting was a panel discussion, moderated by Lea Rau (BGP).

Speakers :

- Maria Prsa (Munich & International Alliance of Safe Harbours)
- Niels Tubbing (Eurocities Working Group on Migration and Integration / EU Urban Partnership on the Inclusion of Migrants)
- Michele LeVoy (Platform for Undocumented Migrants (PICUM))
- Lefteris Papagiannakis (Greek Council for Refugees)
- Tiago da Cruz (From the Sea to the City)
- MEP Birgit Sippel

Structure :

The panel was structured in three parts. Each speaker got the chance to speak at least once in each part. The discussion was supported through follow up questions asked by the moderator and questions asked in the chat.

1. Impacts on the Local Level: What changes do or should cities anticipate from the new CEAS?
2. Implementation Considerations: What should national governments keep in mind about local implications when crafting CEAS implementation plans?
3. Strategic Cooperation: How can city networks collaborate strategically in light of the CEAS reform, and who stands to benefit from such cooperation?

Panel summary:

Impacts on the local level

- Cities and experts expect that more undocumented protection seekers will be in the European cities, potentially more traumatized due to the longer flight and/or screenings, leading to more people being homeless
- For many aspects of CEAS the local implementation and cities responsibilities are still unclear
- Screening regulation could lead to more racial profiling in the cities

- CEAS requirements could make it more difficult for cities to comply with their humanitarian principles
- Resistance and/or frustration of cities' civil society partners and civil society active on the local level

Implementation considerations

- Direct accesses for cities to EU is needed to amplify their voices, share their expertise and their experiences
- Cities should be involved in the drafting of implementation plans
- Solidarity mechanism should take into account the possibilities and needs at the local level, potentially through a matching mechanism
- Cities urgently need further funding in order to implement CEAS and to cope with the impacts described above. Funding should be also channeled directly from the EU to the cities, especially when national governments are not supporting cities sufficiently
- More legal migration paths should be developed

Strategic cooperation

- The exchange of best practices and lessons learned between cities should be facilitated, generally and in the direct context of the CEAS implementation
- Cities and city networks can, together with civil society, coordinate their policy demands and demand to be involved in the drafting of implementation plans
- Joint commitment to humane migration and asylum policies can strengthen cities' positions
- Cities and city networks could coordinate for better funding

EUROCITIES

Dear all,

after years of negotiations, the European institutions have adopted the New Pact on Migration and Asylum, thereby sealing the reform of the Common European Asylum System (CEAS).

But the reform, once translated into implementation, will hardly provide the improvement that those seeking protection in the EU and the cities welcoming them need. Aware of the potential shortcomings, cities and civil society are concerned about how the reform implementation will impact the local level.

We believe that cities' expertise has to be incorporated into the crafting of European and national implementation plans.

City networks can play a pivotal role in achieving this. To address the resulting need for cooperation, the Berlin Governance Platform (representing the EU-funded project Cities4Refugees) and Eurocities are delighted to invite you to an insightful online panel exploring the role cities and city networks can play in light of the evolving CEAS-reform.

The image displays three sequential screenshots of a Zoom webinar. Each screenshot shows a grid of participants and a chat window on the right side.

- Top Screenshot: Shows a grid of 9 participants. The chat window has 11 participants listed. The chat messages include: "Hi Leal!", "Haha, jep - test test", and a welcome message: "Welcome everybody to our Panel! We will be starting shortly!".
- Middle Screenshot: Shows the same grid. The chat window has 10 participants listed. The chat messages include: "Hey Niels, while we wait: also your sound is low" and "Hallo Frau Sippel, kann ich Sie irgendwie unterstützen?".
- Bottom Screenshot: Shows the same grid. The chat window has 9 participants listed. The chat message includes: "Hello Lefferis, thank you for your important contribution. Do you think that the prevention of secondary movement will be addressed more strongly by the Greek government after the pact comes into force? Or is it already foreseeable that it will continue in a similar way?".

Evaluation

An evaluation survey was shared with participants. After the online-meeting, a follow-up and most important information from documentation was sent to the participants. The documentation will be used throughout the whole project to refer to. Next steps are defined and communicated to all.
